Dwindling U.S. Silver Reserves Crisis

173 Million Ounce Loss in Nine Months!

To the average coin collector caught in the whirl of silver controversy the issue at times appears remote and vague. Nothing could be further from the truth, for the numismatic community today is in double jeopardy: on the one hand it is blamed for most of the Nation's silver ills by sensation-seeking columnists and illinformed journalists, on the other hand the average coin collector, as any other citizen, is penalized by a real coin shortage and finds it increasingly difficult to complete even the most inocuous coin series out of change.

Is the midst of this marasm the constant need for reappraisal of the silver crisis is obvious. One such effort was made last week by Senator Peter H. Dominick-R of Colorado in an address to the American Mining Congress, Portland, Oregon, on September 14. With direct reference to the coinage situation he stated: "As we all know silver coins in the United States have become more and more scarce. It has been necessary to offset this with crash programs to provide more cents, nickels, dimes, quarters, and half dollars.

New presses have been dug out of Defense warehouses, contracts have been given by the Mint to private suppliers for the necessary metallic strip, and productive capacity of our two Mints has been sharply increased. It is estimated that by the fall of 1964, U. S. coin production will have tripled over the comparative period of 1963. This, of course, is a necessary and highly commendable effort by the Mint officials to meet the needs of all Americans. At the same time it can be seen that our use of silver for coins will increase at a tremendous rate and there is every indication that the need for this increased use of silver for coinage will continue.

In April 1964, the Treasury informed me that for the 10-month period, June 1963 to April 1964, 91 million ounces of silver had been set aside for coinage and added that there was on hand sufficient silver for coinage requirements to 1972. Once again, as anticipated and noted above, the demand has far exceeded the hear-

Why are we selling more silver abroad than we are importing? The answer is simple . . . the Treasury is trying to hold the price at $1.29 (per ounce). If there were plenty of silver in the Treasury, it might work; but with our rapidly dwindling supply it becomes dangerous . . . They fear (the Treasury) a rise in price would cause our coins to be melted down for their silver content . . . Coins are already being hoarded . . . Gresham's law is already beginning to operate . . . The law of supply and demand and the efforts to avoid its effects are certainly key factors in the situation.

Senator Peter H. Dominick-R, Colorado September 16, 1964.

In 1963, the Silver Purchase Act was repealed and provision made to retire all $1 silver certificates and replace them with Federal Reserve notes. Silver certificates in bulk have been presented to the Treasury for silver bullion and for the period June 4, 1963, to April 2, 1964, the Treasury has informed me that $215.5 million worth of silver certificates were redeemed.

At that time there remained outstanding $1.9 billion of silver certificates and redemptions of these continue at an accelerated rate. These pressures in turn have steadily increased the silver price on the open market until it threatens to break through the silver value of $1.29 in a silver dollar. If the price should push as far as

$1.38, approximately equal to the silver content in lesser coins, considerable fear has been expressed that all U.S. coins will be melted into silver bullion and drive coinage wholly out of circulation.

Hence, the Treasury releases silver from its supply in amounts approximately equal to silver certificates returned to the Federal Reserve System and to date has held the price to $1.29+ to protect its coinage. From this brief summary you can see that we have a mess. The law of supply and demand want to raise silver prices substantially. The Treasury releases have prevented this. The time is not far off when Treasury supplies will not be sufficient to hold the price and supply silver for coinage. The vending companies want to keep present coinage as their machines use them at an annual rate of $3.2 billion. Industrial users want to continue to get silver at cheap prices. Producers recognize that silver output cannot be substantially increased without a substantial price rise."

On the possible solutions for the current coin crisis Senator Dominick had this to say: "Some of your industry have been working hard on the problems and various trial balloons have been floated by the Treasury. These have ranged from doubling the monetary value of existing coins, to calling back all existing coins and replacing them with non-silver alloys. The former would automatically increase silver prices to the users and, hence, is being resisted strenuously. The latter would involve not only opposition from the vending companies which would have to revamp all their machines at enormous cost, but the political reaction of the American people to demonetization, particularly by an administration which has often been termed fiscally irresponsible.

"I suggest that a number of solutions to the silver problem are feasible. We need silver for dedefense. Then let's set aside within existing Treasury supplies an amount sufficient to meet these needs — perhaps 300 to 500 million ounces.

"We need relief for our coinage. Perhaps this could be worked out with less capital dislocation to industrial users by issuing a new ries of coins in 20-,30-,40-, and 70- cent pieces containing a lower silver content. Sooner or later under Gresham's law these would drive out existing coins but it might give needed time relief by letting silver prices rise to stimulate production without introducing nonsilver coins. I do not pretend to have a pat solution for all of these problems but there are some facts which stand out.

"Production of silver is artificially low because of governmental restraints on the operation of the law of supply and demand." Senator Dominick thus stresses the definite needs for the National Defense effort, so often overlooked by most factions.

Type Collecting, New Look In Numismatics

Formula Proves Compatible With Investment Principles

By: Christian F. Verbeke

This article is the second of a three part series. The third portion will appear next week.—Ed.

RENEWED interest in type-collecting, even though dictated by economic considerations, will go a long way towards the formulation of a collector-investor philosophy.

Any attempt at synthesizing a collector-investor philosophy constitutes a genuine and sincere attempt at furthering the cause of modern numismatics (PACE No. 33, Type-Collecting), for indeed the straight coin series-collection formula has proven impractical and onerous to the average collector. Likewise the straight coin investment formula is as yet unproven, unweathered, and highly speculative.

Against this background, a compromise version between collecting and investing appears very desirable and rewarding, both from the coin investor's and coin collector's point of view. No single solution is offered the newcomer to numismatics, indeed should he choose to be solely a collector, he may well find many avenues closed due to prohibitive cost.

neophyte upon having chosen the coin investment route will soon discover enormous inherent misconceptions and find his road paved with numerous pitfalls, all equally detrimental to his finances. Not the least disadvantage of coin investing to the newcomer is the infinite number of factors affecting price trends. Faced thus with the dilemma of choice, many newcomers try one approach and in disgust or dismay turn to the other only to discover their utter inability to excell in either.

This is today's curse on modern numismatics. By total expediency the newcomer may try his hand at medals, tokens, or paper money; unconsciously he has ten chosen fields in which few excell or are called to make a name for themselves. Hence the maxim: Specialization kills. How much specialization is desirable? Specialization in multi-forms of numismatics is of course optimum. Specialization in a narrow field tends to limit considerably the scope and hence the very concept of numismatics.

Having thus established the desirability of 1) a broad approach to numismatics and 2) the advantages of diversification, it becomes immediately apparent to what great extent type-collecting fills both conditions.

In fact, type-collecting can be construed as an ideal vehicle combining possible material gain with pleasure. Few, if any, hobbies present these desirable characteristics.

The concept of type-collecting can be traced back far in antiquity and is directly related to a system of philosophy referred to as eclecticism, this being a method or practice of selecting what seems best from various systems, especially doctrines or religions.

By extension the layman's approach to eclecticism in numismatics could best be achieved by type-collecting. In the cold language of financial investing this would be referred to as diversification. Mutual funds use the concept of diversification as a major sales tool to convey to the prospective investor the idea "spreading the risk out"; just another form of eclecticism, inspired by venal considerations however.

Invariably, eclecticism has been linked to expediency, and this is equally true of type-collecting in numismatics. A most honorable form of expediency however, dictated by modern developments and still inspired by a sincere desire for broad knowledge.

Thus emerges type-collecting, incomplete in essence, complete in approach, defective in completeness, yet all encompassing. To mind come the "Empire Review" words, recently uttered in their No. 19 issue of April-May 1964: "We notice a renaissance of interest in collecting coins by types. To our way of thinking, this is a most interesting way to collect. Collecting by type gives you a comprehensive view of U.S. coinage from its very beginning."

The place of type-collecting in numismatics is guaranteed for posterity, it may well emerge some day as numismatics' backbone especially should the straight series-collecting formula fail, which appears now as inevitable, or should numismatic investing after many vicissitudes be proven a defective and dangerous vehicle which is likely at least in its present roll and bag form.

How challenging is type-collecting really? Stated "Empire Review" recently: "The thrill of the hunt awaits the type collector. Many of the coins needed are not just a question of having the money to buy them; patience and a ey to buy them; patience and a great deal of searching are necessary to track them down." Is type-collecting restrictive? Not so according to type-collection experts.

WORLD CROWN

Empire stated in this respect: "Collecting foreign coins by types is becoming popular also. A goodly percentage of the orders we receive for British coins, for example, are for type coins. In the Canadian series the desire for types has increased the demand for such coins as the 1858 twenty cent piece and the silver coins of 1911."

> 20 CENTS PROVINCE OF CANADA VICTORIA

What makes a coin a "type"? With specific reference to the two preceeding examples it should be remembered that the 1858 twenty cent piece was solely struck that year and only 750,000 pieces at that. This makes the coin desirable from a type-collection point of view, although not rare.

As to the silver coinage of 1911, asides of being the year when 1000 milled edge matte proofs were issued in 1-,10-,25-, and 50-cent denominations, it is also the year of the "Graceless Coins". They are unique in that the words DEI GRATIA were omitted.

Highly significant U.S. types include the three-dollar gold pieces minted from 1854-1889, the two-cent bronze coins of 1864-1873, the small cents (white or copper nickel cents) Flying Eagle type 1856-1858, and Indian Head type 1859-1864. Other esteemed types include the three-cent pieces (nickel) of 1865-1889, the nickel five-cent pieces shield type 1836-1883. The list continues to infinity; all types have one thing in common, however: each and everyone has an interesting story to tell. Tales of disappointed political aspirations, human greed, great scientific or political achievements, the entire panorama of human emotions and reactions.

The complexity of type-collecting makes coverage of the subject in condensed form highly undesirable. Specifically to be covered in forthcoming issues of PACE are the subjects of foreign type-collections, or "types" within type-collections i.e., double florins in English coinage. The subject of multi nation type-collecting is best illustrated by "crowns of the world" collecting, etc.

Dwindling

Indeed silver users' only concern is over the availability of cheap silver. The American Bankers Association lobby solely deplores the problems of coin supply logistics for the inconvenience it causes to banking operations. Extremists make political hay of the situation by their cries of "devaluation," "debased coinage," "fiat Money" or "Lord Maynard Keynes revisited" . . . the list continues to infinity. Sequal to his Portland presentation, Senator Dominick took his arguments to the floor of the Senate on September 16 where he stated in essence: "There has been at least an increase of 10 times between 1961 and to date in the demand by other governmental agencies for silver supplies held by the Treasury. These are largely used, for example, in batteries, photographic supplies, and in defense needs, including the Polaris submarine.

"It is worthy of note that unless we do something about setting a supply of silver aside for defense needs, we are suddenly going to find ourselves trapped in the position where we do not have enough production of silver in the United States to supply even the defense needs of this country. So long as we have a supply on hand of silver presently available in the Treasury, it seems to me to be nonsense not to set aside some portion of this silver for that purpose.

As I pointed out in the speech, the Treasury informed me in April of 1964 that we had enough silver to take care of coinage requirements until 1972. # WAR NICKELS VANISH

Other Silver Coins Soon To Follow

By Russell K. Brown

In October of 1963, the beginning coin collector experienced little difficulty in completing the silver nickel section of his Jefferson album. With only two exceptions, the 1943-D and 1944-S, these eleven issues were minted in rather large quantities. Their composition was fifty-six per cent copper, thirty-five per cent silver and nine per cent manganese. The switch from the standard composition of twenty-five per cent nickel and seventy-five per cent copper was undertaken due to the scarcity of nickel during the war

Today, the situation has changed to a degree not thought possible a year ago. With the rise of silver prices to $1.2929 per ounce, the war nickel is worth over seven cents in metal content and has been the first casualty of what must be considered as a particularly vulnerable group of American coins. This group, composed of the dime, quarter, half dollar and dollar will all be candidates for the melting pot when and if the price of silver reaches $1.42. With the increased usage of silver for coins and as a necessary part of modern day technology, there are those who feel the time of the "big melt" is not far away.

It would seem that a mintage of some eight hundred million coins would be practically invulnerable to hoarding and melting efforts. But such is not the case. In October of 1963 when the program of smelting war nickels began in earnest, there were an average of six silver nickels in each random roll examined. Today, that average has decreased to fewer than one per roll. This decrease must be regarded as indicative of a time in the very near future when there will be no more silver nickels to be found in general circula-

One of the reasons for this disappearance has been the steady increase in rates paid for the delivery of silver nickel bags to the collection agents. Beginning at a level of $225.00 ($25.00 over face) the payoff has increased to its current high of $248.00. As can be seen by the accompanying income statement on the smelting of a representative bag, the profit margin has been cut almost to the point of non-existence for the accumulating centers. In fact the only ones

100.00% $897.00 Using accepted figures of four plus per cent loss each year this puts current stocks of silver nickels remaining after 20 years at about 350,000,000. Of these, there have probably been 50,000,000 million melted another 25,000,000 may be found in coin hoards and collections. Also figure another 50,000,000 being held in less-than-bag quantities ready for melting and you have a remaining supply of only one silver nickel per citizen still in general circulation.

still able to handle the silver nickels competitively are those with direct connections to the smelters and few if any shipping costs from center to smelter.

The silver nickel situation points out in a small way what will happen to our country's coinage if the price of silver varies upward appreciably. One cringes to think of the vast production of the mint this year and next being melted year after next.

And yet this must be regarded as a distinct possibility. During the month of August, our mints used $25,000,000 worth of silver bullion for coin production alone. Even though we have a stockpile of a billion eight hundred million dollars in silver, this would be used up in five years or less just by coinage demands alone. And with projected increases in usage of silver for coinage and for space industries not to mention the silverware and photographic users, it would appear that our stockpile will last no longer than three years if no action is taken.

The denizens of the numismatic community are readying themselves for the future crisis in the best way they know. They are buying all the silver coins they can and hoarding them at a fast and furious rate. By now everyone knows of the run on the silver dollars and the fact that there are probably forty million of these coins hocked at banks all over the country awaiting a silver price rise which will see them on their way to the furnaces. It doesn't take a very smart man to realize that if he buys a cartwheel for $1.25, puts it in the bank and pays six cents interest on it for two years and then sells it for $1.96 (assuming the price of silver doubles and the smelting cost is four cents) that he has made a fifty nine cent profit. And he has not only had four fifths financing but also has had virtually no risk other than the twenty five cent premium and the twelve cent inter-

While adequate financing is difficult on bags and rolls of lesser coinage such as dimes, quarters and halves, the projected return is just as favorable since there is no "front end" premium if the coins are taken from circulation.

Due to the silver shortage plus the accompanying certainty felt by many that the price must double, our coinage is going underground at an ever increasing rate. And the rather ghastly humor of the situation is that the resulting coin shortage causes the government to use ever increasing amounts of silver to supply the hoarders with more coins to

We have seen in the past two months two new series of coins gain popularity based on this silver fever. These are the circulated Washington quarters and circulated Franklin half dollars. The feeling is that the sets can be completed mainly out of pocket change and the keys purchased inexpensively compared to their B. U. brethren. And when the bulk of these series are withdrawn from circulation for smelting at some future time, so the thinking goes, the semi keys will all appreciate in value as will even the junk dates of the set. As one predicter stated, its a can't lose, can win situation.

Of course, the question which a sober investor must ask himself when faced with such a seeming cinch of a blue chip investment is, just what can go wrong.

In this case, there is plenty. One small and overlooked statistic which you will find virtually no one quoting is the fact that if no silver were to be used for coinage in the future, our silver stockpile would last for quite a while. In fact, some fifteen years based on current non numismatic usage and production. So the question must be asked is there anything that would keep the government from completely removing all silver from its coinage next year, once elections are past, and pegging the price of silver at $1.2929?

While it must be admitted that we would have some coinage with an intrinsic value and some without, the lock on the price of silver would make it unwise to hoard silver coinage for anything but a long term investment. As a matter of fact, faced with a doubling of the price of silver some eight to ten years in the future and the knowledge that interest would have to be paid for that period, many short term investors might well release some of their hoards. And the government might well increase its stockpile if it initiated a policy of quietly redeeming and smelting silver coinage and replacing it with a new plastic or aluminum issue.

At any rate, we feel that the point is well taken that the government is certainly not going to undertake any plan whereby its coinage will disappear over night. Since the above stated policy of issue, peg and remove would well serve its ends and at the same time avert a crisis it would be wise for the investor to consider it before making a major commitment which could be disastrous.

NOTICE: We recommend the 1964 Proof Set as a good investment for the future. Here are some of the reasons:
(1) it will be the last set made for at least a year,
(2) it will be the only set with a President on each coin,
(3) it will be the only proof Kennedy half dollar,
(4) this set is in great demand by all foreign countries as well as the U.S.,
(5) is the only set made with two of our great assassinated President's portraits on a coin,
(6) we feel this set has one of the greatest futures of any proof set ever made . . . . so don't be caught short like on the 1950-D nickel. Buy while it is still cheap. We don't ask you to buy from us but Do buy before the big anticipated increase. There will not be proof sets for 1965 as I have personally talked to the Mint and they say no more will be made after December 31, 1964 . . .

This method permits you to mark only the date and price of your holder, thereby eliminating arguments with those who disagree with your grade. They can mentally grade it, and if the price is O.K., they buy without discussing grade.

File in chip-board boxes; when you see a green holder you know that it contains a quarter. Eliminates "digging" for specific denominations. Makes trading or selling easier.

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

We have noticed with interest since the advent of the teletype machines in the coin business in February of 1963, the increase in the number of 'coin dealers' throughout the country. Now we are noting the increase in the number of teletype networks throughout the country to try and service more of these 'coin dealers.' During the past few months we have received solicitations from no less than six teletype networks which were in the process of being formed to give service to coin dealers. We wish all of them luck, but this situation is beginning to look ridiculous as there is certainly no need for additional teletype systems to service the dealers to-day

As far as the increase in the number of 'coin dealers', we think that this is reaching an alarming situation. The reason we use parenthesis is that we do not consider many of these so called dealers to be dealers at all. A legitimate coin dealer has a stock of coins and sufficient capital to run his business and does not depend on the teletypes to make his vliing, although the teletype machines do add to his business.

A new breed has sprung up in the past year or so though. The new breed does not have a stock of coins and hardly has any capital to operate on. The only stock in trade of this new breed 'dealer' is his teletype machine. He will offer to buy for collectors and investors and just charge a flat commission on the purchases, and will sell for them the same way. The new breed 'dealer' certainly has a lot of guts because he advertises coins for sale that he does not have, and then when he receives an order, he tries to purchase the coins over the teletype at somewhat less than he sold them for. If he can't purchase the coins at a price at which he can make a profit, the collector or investor receives his check back with a 'sorry, all sold

We bring this all to your attention so that you will know that the possession of a teletype machine is no sign that a dealer is honorable in his dealings and that when you buy coins from him you will be getting the best deal possible. Don't forget that the new breed has to buy the coins from another dealer and add some profit on to them before he sells them to you. Far be it from us to condemn teletype networks and dealers that have them, as we have three different machines ourselves now. Of course it is reaching a point where there is a lot of duplication, and we don't see how any more networks will actually help the business with the exception of making a few bucks for the operators of the networks.

Now don't get the idea that this new breed of 'coin dealer' is representing the industry as a whole. The bulk of the industry is represented by reliable dealers that have been in business for quite some time. However, we would recommend that you do a little checking before you do any ordering from dealers unknown to you. Also when you go in to a coin shop, just look around and see if there are any coins in stock that amount to anything. That will always

Bowers on World Coins

O. David Bowers

The small African nation of Sierra Leone has been very much in the news numismatically these days due to the issuance of 1964 proof sets. The 1964 coins represent the first Sierra Leone coinage for over one and one half centuries ... since 1796 to be exact.

In 1791, Sierra Leone, then a British Colony, issued a proof set containing the one cent, ten cents, twenty cents, fifty cents and dollar. The number struck of these sets is not known but is probably on the order of several hundred or fewer sets. For illustrations of the 1791 coinage refer to Robert Friedberg's "Coins of the British World." This book is a worthwhile edition to anyone seriously interested in coins of the British Commonwealth.

The 1791 coinage occurs in several varieties. The most well-known of these are the dollar varieties. One variety of dollar has the denomination as 100. This signifies that it is worth 100 cents or 100 pennies. The other variety (and the scarcer of the two) has the value simply as the number 1 representing the one dollar unit.

The 1791 coinages are of exquisite workmanship and represent the high standards then in force at Matthew Boulton's private Soho Mint. The same fine workmanship and die execution is evident in countless other products of this mint . . . 1793 Bermuda coinage, 1797 Cartwheel British copper coinage, etc.

The 1791 Sierra Leone coinage is quite scarce. The only pieces which appear on the market with any frequency at all are the one cent or one penny pieces. These are usually seen in bronzed proof condition and sell for in the $50.00 to $100.00 range.

Incidentally, British proofs of the late 18th century and early 19th century are commonly found with bronzed proof surfaces. This type of surface has a reddish brown color and is made with the aid of bronzing powder during striking. The United States mint used a similar process during the 19th century. with the result that most of the carefully made mint issues of the 1860's and 1870's have this appearance. This process required much more attention to detail than did the regular proof process which consisted of merely striking a polished planchet with polished dies.

Information concerning 1964 Sierra Leone proof sets has been sketchy at best. Confusion has reigned, and we have literally been peppered with questions. The facts are that 1964 Sierra Leone proof sets were issued by the Royal Mint in London for L2/10 per set, which is equivalent to $7.00 in United States funds. This is the original issue price... and any advertised prices higher than this represent profits over and above the mint issue price.

The issue of 6,000 pieces was poorly distributed with the bulk of the sets going to only a handful of buyers. The average collector desiring a set did not even know that Sierra Leone proof sets were available until all had been sold. For this reason, most collectors have had to pay a premium . . . with numerous sales in the $40.00 range being reported.

With one or two exceptions, any dealers in the United States wanting Sierra Leone proof sets had to pay profits to several middlemen along the line as they, too, did not have the opportunity to buy sets until all had been sold.

Since the original issue of 6,000 sets, we have learned that this figure is going to be raised by the issuer to approximately 10,000 sets or perhaps more. It is presumed that the second issue will be more widely distributed.

The 1964 Sierre Leone proof set consists of six coins of the denominations one half cent, one cent, five cents, ten cents, twenty cents, and one Leone. The one Leone denomina(Continued on Page 16)

-CANADA SILVER DOLLARS-

Still remain the King of Canadian coinage and with the exception of a few dates, prices continue to rise due to the ever increasing demands of the collector and the fact that there just are not enough to go around. There are no huge hoards available and certainly no group has enough of any one date to materially effect the market.

This definitely places the Canadian silver dollar in the NON-SPECU-LATIVE class and in one of sound Numismatic Value. Look at the low mintages, scarcity, demand, prices paid; then decide for yourself.

amount that you wish to pay for the coins. Most dealers are very conscientious and will try to buy for your account at the best price possible, but there are some that will buy at any price just so they can make their commission. In fact the higher price that they buy for you at, the more commission they will make, so beware.

We also would like to suggest that you examine your purchases as soon as possible, preferably immediately to see if everything is as represented. Although many of the established dealers will guarantee what they sell, they still don't like to receive merchandise back for any reason at all after a reasonable length of time has elapsed. The usual time limit for returning unsat-isfactory merchandise in the coin industry is three days from the receipt of the material. This should certainly give you enough time to thoroughly check your purchase. This is entirely for your own protection as you actually have no redress afterwards. The real burden of checking usually rests on the purchaser as it is practically impossible for the dealer to check everything that he sells. For instance when a dealer buys say a circulated roll set of Roosevelt (Continued on Page 24)

Department of Interior Enters Silver Crisis Agency's Role Vital to Future Developments

THE Department of the Interior announced today that it is taking action to forestall a possible shortage of silver and to expand supplies of silver for essential national defense and civilian requirements, such as rocket and jet aircraft construction.

A special study, conducted by the Bureau of Mines on instruction from Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall, reveals: New uses for silver in solid fuel rockets, supersonic jets, and special purpose batteries, added conventional strategic uses, make any shortage of silver a potential threat to national

While domestic mines have produced an average of only 34 million troy ounces annually over the past 5 years, average domestic consumption over the same period has been 106 million troy ounces annually, over three times the volume of production from mines.

From 60 to 65 percent of silver from domestic sources is derived as a byproduct from processing ores mined principally for their lead, zinc, or copper content. The report stated that, as a result, increased silver prices cannot be wholly effective in stimulating silver output. The Nation's principal foreign suppliers of silver-Canada, Mexico, and Peru-also obtain most of their silver as a byproduct of other mining activity. Also, the free world has been a deficit silver supply area for 5 years. With the outlook for continued shortage, imports cannot be looked to as a likely solution.

To meet the Department of the Interior's primary responsibility to assure adequate supplies of minerals to meet the industrial and strategic needs of the Nation as effectively as possible, Secretary Udall

Directed the Office of Minerals Exploration after he consulted with appropriate congressional committees — to increase the percentage of Federal financial assistance from a current maximum of 50 percent to 75 percent of the total cost of new private silver exploration ven-

Instructed the Office of Minerals and Solid Fuels to determine potential silver supplies available to meet mobilization needs and to

.0050 develop information needed to establish an adequate mobilization base.

Ordered the Geological Survey to initiate a reconnaissance program to outline favorable areas for the occurrence of near-surface, high-silver deposits in Nevada. Initial work will entail geologic mapping and geothermal reconnaissance. Later studies will utilize experimental methods and techniques, and may include physical exploration of promising areas.

Directed the Bureau of Mines to place particular emphasis on silver in mining and metallurgical re-

TREASURES FROM THE OCEAN'S FLOOR

Just returned from Atlantic coast where we represented the state in connection with recent gold salvage operations. We purchased a limited amount of U.S. silver coins, from the salvagers, which had been on the ocean floor for over 100 years.
They are in various Forms of deterrioration, some readable dates and some not, but all interestingly priced. Our coins our choice and not returnable.

key rolls such as the 1949-S, 1950-S, 1951-S, and the 1955-PDS, and not even try to check any of the others. However, if you should purchase this roll set of Roosevelt dimes from this dealer, he will guarantee that you are buying a complete set, but it is up to you to check the set to see if there are any errors. If there are any errors, your dealer will correct them, but you must let him know as soon as possible.

While we are on the subject of the various pitfalls in coin collecting and investing, we will make brief mention of some of the 'phony' coins that are being offered. Now before we go any further, we would like to mention that there is not one reliable dealer in the whole country that will knowingly sell a 'phony' coin. Some of the fakes are so good however, that they will pass all but the most minute examination. On the other hand, some of the fakes are so poor that even an amateur can detect them. This does not stop the sharp shooters from (Continued on Page 25)

Canada Gold Reserves In August Topped July

The gold content of Canada's foreign exchange reserves continued to rise in August, according to Bank of Canada figures. Month-end gold holdings were reported at $969,000, 000, or 37.6% of reserves totaling $2,575,900,000. At July 31, $948,800,000 of gold made up 37.4% of reserves totaling $2,533,900,000. The non-gold part of the reserves is largely U. S. Government securities— (From the Wall Street making the coins nor does it stop collectors from buying them when they are sure that they are getting a big bargain. Some of the coins that are being faked in many different ways are the 1909-Svdb cent, the 1914-D cent, and the 1931-S cent. To manufacture the 1909-Svdb the most common method used is to take an 'S' and solder it on to a 1909-vdb cent. This is fairly easy to detect, but some people are so excited about being able to buy a 1909-Svdb at 20% below the market price that they just shell out the cash and look at the coin closely afterwards. Of course you will never find the sharpie who sold you the coin as he is long gone by the time you discover the deception. They are making 1909-Svdb cents by the spark erosion process too, and this is difficult to detect. The 1914-D cent has been made out of 1944-D cents with part of the first '4' scraped off to make it look like a '1'. This is also easy to detect as there is a noticable space between the 19 and 14 that there isn't in the legitimate coin. Also, the initials 'vdb' appear under Lincoln's shoulder on the 1944-D and do not on the genuine 1914-D. The 1916-D dime has been the subject of many sharpies, and all we can tell you to do is to know your dealer if you do not know your coins. As a matter of fact, even though you do know your coins it is a good idea to know who you are dealing with.

Dwindling

(Continued from Page 4 ) Treasury has now embarked on a crash program to supply enough coins for the country. This, they hope, will offset the shortage. They plan to double production from 4.3 billion coins in fiscal 1964 to 8 billion in fiscal 1965. This is extremely important. This is one of the fundamental things that we must do through the mint — provide enough coins to be able to supply the American public with their needs.

"After the Treasury stopped their outright market sales in November 1961, the outflow of silver from their stocks still continued to increae. During the calendar year 1963, this outflow doubled from calendar year 1962. It does not take a mathematical genius to determine that the Treasury will be out of silver for coinage purposes, long before 1972. Some reliable sources estimate that it may happen as early as 1966.

ly as 1966. "Our domestic production of silver continues to lag seriously behind our domestic consumption. The United States consumes six times more silver than it can produce and production continues to decrease while consumption increases. Throughout the world the problem is nearly as acute. World consumption continues to exceed world production by a 2-to-1 margin. In fact, the 1963 world production figures were 210.5 million ounces while the consumption of the United States alone was 221.3 million ounces, or more than the entire

"The U.S. Treasury continues to serve as the 'bargain basement' for the world. And, I am talking about their supply of silver. The Treasury holds the price of silver at about $1.29 an ounce by selling its silver under the guise of redeeming silver certificates. The law of supply and demand is thwarted in this manner. For instance, during 1963 the Treasury imported 59,062,137 ounces of silver, but exported 31,484,055 ounces. Through July of 1964, we have imported 32,103,664 ounces, but we have exported 32,172,130 ounces.

"Thus, through July of this year, we have actually sold, during 1964, 68,466 ounces more silver to foreign countries than we might work; but with our rapidly dwindling supply, it becomes dangerous. The reason that the Treasury continues to keep the price down is that they fear a rise in price would cause our coins to be melted down for their silver content. Obviously, coins are already being hoarded — Gresham's law is already beginning to operate. The thrust of my remarks today is that we must come to grips with the basic issue. We will only be able to produce more silver in this country when we allow the price of silver to

From the latest Treasury information received, indicating a net silver reserve loss of 173,613,459 ounces over a nine month period, the need for drastic and speedy action becomes immediately apparent. At this venue, nothing stands to be gained from postponing the issue any further. Inevitably, whatever solution adopted, certain minority interests are bound to be impaired.

At stake, however, is: The National Interest over and above the hollow ware manufacturers' desires, the convenience of bank tellers and vending machine bag men, or all breeds of political extremists.

B. U. CANADIAN 1963 NICKELS

The hottest coin on the market today. Why is the 1963 nickel moving so fast?

*It is 'WAY UNDER PRICED

It has a lower mintage figure than the 1962 and 1961 nickel, which sell for over twice the price.

*It is in SHORT SUPPLY as the mint did not make them at the end of 1963 when dealers decided to buy them.

*It is the first year of the Queen Elizabeth ROUND nickel, which may start a new series for collectors.

*With the change in the design of Canadian coinage next year, it is now a type coin as a round nickel with the young head of Queen Elizabeth.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis. The high and low for 1964 is also

MARKET SUMMARY

By Russell Brown

T was a quiet week in the coin market with Peace dollars dropping sharply and Washington quarters renewing their price rise. The rest of the market experienced very little activity though much interest was evidenced by all concerned as to just how much a 1964 proof set was worth.

The proof series was relatively unchanged during the week though there was a general lowering of ask prices. The 1964 set started the week at $13.50 bid and for four days the price ran the complete range from $10 to $14 bid and ask prices were to be found from $13 to $16. Accusations and charges of price fixing filled the air and the week ended with no one quite certain as to just what the future held for the sets.

Washington quarters had a good week with numerous issues resuming their increases of the preceding weeks. Both the 1944-D and 1952-S rose $20 and the 1946-D, 1941-P and the 1958-P were close behind with substantial gains. The five declines in the series were of minor nature except for a loss of $10 by the 1942-S.

Franklin half dollars were surprisingly bid after with advances outnumbering declines eight to one as a result. Many of the later dates were requested in bag quantity and while gains were on a small scale, there was still more interest in the series than in most of the others. Particularly active was the 1958-P with a gain of two dollars

Jefferson nickels rose on average as a result of an increase in price by the 1938-S. Advances outnumbered declines thirteen to four with the war nickels mixed. Most active in that group were the 1944-S and the 1943-P each with gains of seven dollars or more. The 1950-D seems to be unwanted at this time and the price range on the king is very narrow considering the asking price.

Roosevelt dimes had another inactive week with a slight majority of advances. But there were five dollar losses by the 1949-D, 1952-S and the 1953-P to darken the picture. Very little action was observed in the key 1955 issues with the possible exception of the Denver product.

Mercury dimes were slightly higher as several roll set bids were made for the late dates. And the 1942-P and 1944-S each gained five dollars. There appears to be an increasing interest in putting together Mercury sets by collectors and it is fast becoming evident that there are not too many of this series still around in B.U. condition.

Lincoln cents had a bad week with many of the late date rolls offered at ask prices of the preceding week. These offerings, in roll rather than bag quantity had a depressing effect on the entire cent market. Both small date issues suffered losses as did a large grouping of issues from the early forties. It seems that the large 1964 mintage not having the expected effect on the cent market that was anticipated by many.

Morgan dollars presented a really incredible picture while continuing their trend of little interest and less activity. Of the 97 issues, only one showed a price change for the week. And that change, by the 1881-0 was for only $3.00. The feeling is prevalent around the coin market place that the Morgan series may go up or down depending on the outcome of the current silver crisis. And few want to take any further positions in the series until that outcome appears a little more certain.

In the Canadian market, there was a completely different price structure on the various exchanges. On A.N.E. the prices of sets and dollars were marginally lower while on the other two major networks, dollars were in demand. And we understand that on the Canadian system, the roll market is getting an extremely good play with many prices rising in an manner reminiscent of the '63 period in the U.S. market.

Circulated coinage was quiet with only a few reductions in circulated nickel prices and a few increases in Franklin series. There was also interest shown in the 1958-P and 1937-S circulated Washington quarters with in price gains of one dollar and five dollars respectively shown

THE MARKET OPINION
As guessed several weeks ago the Peace dollar series has not quieted and seems due for a period of consolidation. However, the accompanying price drops shown during this week are out of the ordinary and show to what extent an over priced condition had been created.

Rumors are flying that the Treasury has been petitioned for release of the new cartwheels in late October for the celebration of the Nevada Centennial. Whether the Treasury can handle the production on such a short notice remains to be seen but it would be nice if the coins could he made ready. Maybe the early delivery would catch the money lenders unprepared for their expected dollar profiteering and allow a few of the coins to reach the general public.

The roll market has developed into a very selective special situation market during the last several weeks. At the present time we see no one series taking a lead but rather key and semi key issues of each series in demand.
